PHd Course - ADMISSION EXAM: FAQ

How is the admission exam carried out?

See general announcement. It is usually done in person, but the candidate can ask to be interviewed via zoom

How is the admission exam composed?

It consists of two parts

- a) Evaluation of qualifications (CV, publications and so on)
- b) Interview

How are securities valued?

Qualifications are awarded a total of 30 points which are assigned by the examining commission on the basis of:

- Degree thesis: a copy of the thesis must be attached to the application (if it is not attached, the score will be zero). The points will be awarded on the basis of the congruity of the thesis with respect to the topic of the doctorate and its addresses.
- Curriculum Vitae: a document drawn up on the basis of the European CV must be attached (if not attached, the score will be zero). Remember to include in the curriculum the knowledge of the foreign language.
- Publications: articles with impact factors registered in ISI WebB or Scopus must be uploaded as a pdf document on the platform and must be listed at the bottom of the CV specifying the impact factor for each of them. Non-indexed abstracts or articles may be listed separately on the CV
- Other qualifications: the candidate can list here every aspect he deems appropriate, including letters of reference (maximum 2), experiences and hobbies that contribute to enhancing his skills even if not strictly relevant to the health sector

How will the interview take place?

The examining Commission will interview the candidate. The candidate will have to demonstrate his aptitude for research, in particular by presenting his previous experiences and illustrating the project that he would eventually like to carry out during the years of the Ph.D. course.

Will there be a threshold on the qualifications to be able to participate in the interview?

According to the regulations of the University of Padua, the threshold for participating in the interview is 21 points out of 30 possible. The decision on whether to apply this threshold will be made each year by the Ph.D. Board and specified in the announcement.
